Microcase: lightweight, rugged protection for your Atari* personal computer

Congratulations! You've purchased one of your finest investments—an ATARI* Personal Computer. Your ATARI* 400 or 800 Personal Computer will excite, entertain and educate you for years to come.

But why keep a good thing in one place?

With the new, sturdy Microcase you can take your ATARI* Personal Computer wherever you go—to your office, sales meeting, home, school, summer house, or favorite vacation spot.

Weighing only 3 lbs. 10 oz., Microcase is as easy to carry as your briefcase, yet it's compact enough to hold everything: your ATARI* Personal Computer, Program Recorder, joy sticks, connection box, two cassette tapes, 3 cartridges, power adaptor and electrical cords. Moreover, a ½" foam layer separates your ATARI* Personal Computer from its accessories.

Pack your ATARI* Personal Computer in the specially-designed Microcase and take your ATARI* Personal Computer along—confident it's safe from damage.

Microcase provides the flexibility of a soft-pack with the durability of a hard case

Just as you'd protect a fine piece of jewelry or an expensive piece of equipment, you should also shelter your ATARI* Personal Computer from dirt, scuffs, and damage. Microcase provides the protection you need. It guards your investment, makes your personal computer easier to carry, and stores your ATARI* Personal Computer when not in use.

The secret of Microcase's strength lies in its construction. We made Microcase from Codura the rugged material chosen by North Face and Sierra Design for manufacturing high quality tents and backpacks. Microcase resists water spots, abrasions, mildew and is completely machine washable. The heavy-duty zipper and double welting assure you that Microcase is built to last.

Microcase turns your ATARI computer into a portable teacher's aide that moves from class to class with safety. Peripherals stay with the computer, protected from dust and curious fingers.*

Special design cuddles your Atari* Personal Computer

Take your office along. Microcase increases protection and portability for your ATARI Personal Computer. Your records, forecasts, and ongoing projects are as near as the Microcase zipper.*

Microcase saves you time and frustration

You bought your ATARI* Personal Computer to increase your effectiveness. Yet you can lose the advantage of your ATARI* Personal Computer if you leave pieces of it in the office when you take it home or on vacation. What good is your computer without the cord?

Ensure your first trip will be your only trip. Pack all your ATARI* Personal Computer equipment in your convenient efficient Microcase. You'll be home forecasting next year's profits while the other guy is still lugging his equipment to the car.

Designed for the ATARI* 400 and 800 Personal Computer, the Microcase is fitted inside with 5" thick polyurethane foam specially diecut to fit your ATARI* Personal Computer and its accessories. Offering enduring insulation and protection, Microcase withstands up to 250 pounds of pressure.

Yet, its extraordinary strength does not result in extra bulk. Microcase measures just 14" x 18" and weighs under four pounds—light enough for a child to carry, heavy enough to do the job. Microcase comes with a soft, convenient hand gripper and identification tag.

Throw Microcase in your car trunk, take it on the plane, stash it in a closet, Microcase will be on the job—protecting your ATARI* Personal Computer.

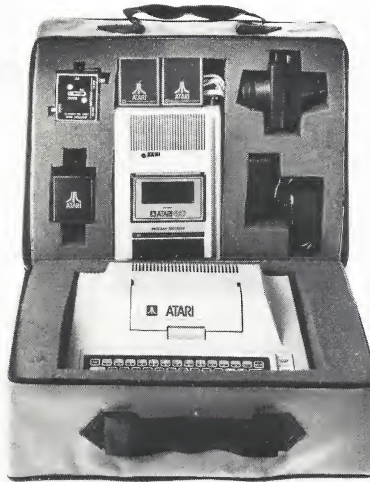

Sun, ski, swim and compute on your next vacation. Pack your ATARI in Microcase and bring it along on the plane or in the car. Vacation is an ideal time to play computer games with your family, try your hand at programming, or to get ahead on new uses for your ATARI*. And when you're ready for the slopes, just store your ATARI* in its specially designed Microcase.*
